The Most Important Novelty of Chess Informant 95

Sasa Velickovic

Of particular interest to our readers is the high quality game Van Wely – Radjabov, where Van Wely surprised his opponent in a well-known position by playing 13.Ne6. In similar positions, White's knight would only jump to the e6-square after Black plays h6.

Van Wely probably estimated in his home analyses that it would be better to give Radjabov the chance to go wrong, and the game continuation proved him right. With its many subtle changes, it is no wonder that this was selected among the ten best games of the previous volume. I'm sure we will soon learn if Black has better possibilities.
